

Thunders Of Silence Too
Much; Little
Okie Is Buck

By HAL BOXE

With American Troops in Germany, Nov. 4 (Delayed) (AP)—Rank and its special privilege are the cause of perennial bitterness in the American civilian Army, but men without stripes or bars have a way of dealing with non-coms and officers who let promotion go to their heads.

Witness the sergeant who was broken by silence.

Call him Okie—which is close enough to the name the men knew him by. He was a courier, a jeep driver for a service outfit which made several trips daily to the front lines. Okie would drive anywhere in the rear areas but he was distinctly allergic to gunfire.

Whenever a jeep had to be sent toward the front Okie wasn't around—or if he was around he became suddenly too ill to drive, or complained so strongly that some other driver would shrug and say, "Oh, hell, I'll go for him."

NIGHT COURIER

Okie volunteered for a job as a night courier driver which nobody else wanted because of the hours. Okie was glad to get it—the trips were dark and lonely, but they were far beyond the range of enemy artillery.

He did his job well and wasn't disliked. He could strum a guitar and sing hillbilly songs and other soldiers found him amusing. Some officers couldn't stand him, but others thought he was a model little soldier. Okie always "yes sirred" them at every opportunity and never forgot to throw them a salute.

So when the table of organization permitted one officer angling a sergeantcy for little Okie, the boy who wouldn't go near the front.

"OUT OF UNIFORM"

He found himself a snazzy pair of leather puttees and an old pair of French riding breeches, grew a little black mustache and began giving orders. He was "out of uniform," but the officers who liked him overlooked this because he was Okie and never forgot that "yes sir" and that salute.

But the men under him stopped dropping by to listen to his guitar. They had halfway liked Okie as a private—but they didn't like the idea of taking orders from such a half-pint.

No one ever came up to speak to him voluntarily. If he gave an order it was taken in complete silence. Okie had no friends left in his unit.

TOO MUCH SILENCE

Then most of the old men in his unit were moved several hundred miles away. Okie missed them, felt the need of justifying himself in their eyes. He obtained a week's pass in order to visit them.

The ridiculous little figure in his leather puttees and French riding pants was met at the new camp by stony silence. The men he spoke to would nod curtly and turn away. Groups melted apart as he came up.

Okie stood it for three days. Then he left one morning. No one bade him goodbye.

He didn't show up at once at his old camp. He went AWOL—and was four days late returning from his leave. He had plainly been on a binge—little Okie, who always before had one toe carefully on the line.

They busted Okie, took away his stripes and his extra pay, made him take off his puttees and riding breeches. Okie is a private again now. He sometimes forgets to salute when an officer goes by. He plays his guitar—but only when the new men in his outfit gather to listen. They bid him and call him "The man who was."

Mrs. Stanton, who formerly taught art in a number of high school and rural districts in the county, has been commuting from Harrisburg this year. The board directed Superintendent L. C. Keefauver to attempt to locate a successor.

The resignation was received at one of the briefest directors' meetings held here in several years. Business was completed and the meeting adjourned in 45 minutes. President Ralph Z. Osler presided with all members of the board present.

Two leaves of absence were granted local teachers for the purpose of restoration of health. Miss Ruth McElroy, of the high school faculty, and Mrs. Margaret Gibson, fourth grade teacher at High Street school, were granted sabbatical leaves to the end of the first semester, January 31.

Mrs. Sarah Black Gideon and Mrs. Earl J. Bowman, who have been serving as substitutes, were formally named as substitutes for the two teachers on leave—Mrs. Gideon in the high school and Mrs. Bowman at High Street.

COUNTY FRUIT GROWERS WILL MEET THURSDAY

Adams county fruit growers will hold a meeting Thursday evening at the Biglerville auditorium at 7:30 o'clock. Ralph W. Tyson, of Gardners, secretary treasurer of the Fruit Growers Association of Adams county, announced today.

The meeting has been called, Tyson said, to determine what can be done about a number of complex problems that confront the fruit industry of Adams county. These problems will require "the united efforts of everyone," he stated, "and it is urgent that we get together to discuss them."

Fred Lewis and Harold Steiner, of the Acrediville Fruit laboratory, will present talks on "The High Lights in Orchard Disease and Insect Research Work."

Plans for 1945

One of the principal items of the meeting will be the discussion of the labor situation as it affects county fruit growers. A request from the War Food Administration for information regarding the probable need for Jamaican help in 1945 and the possibility of camp facilities will be discussed.

A second labor item to be taken up is the acute shortage of workers in the processing plants in the county. Tyson said this shortage is delaying the program necessary to process the fruit.

Representatives of the processing plants will be present to explain the situation and E. A. Crouse, manager of the local office of the United States Employment Service, will talk on what is being done to help the cannery.

Other business will be the appointment of a nominating committee. The growers also were advised by Tyson that the Adams County Farm Bureau Cooperative will talk on what is being done to help the cannery.

There were brief talks by Q. D. Robert, Littlestown; Orpheus Diller, York Springs; Mr. Neely, Fairfield; J. B. Waddle, Fairfield; S. G. Soljenberger, Gettysburg; O. A. Lapp and Murray E. Wentz, both of Gettysburg, and the Rev. John C. Brumbach, pastor of Christ Reformed church, near Littlestown.

I also believe you do not mix politics with your profession, in which you are right. You have confidence in yourself, which is invaluable, if not an indispensable quality. You are ambitious, which, within reasonable bounds, does good rather than harm. But I think that during Gen. I have heard, in such a way as to believe it, of your recently saying that both the Army and the Government needed a Dictator. Of course it was not for this, but in spite of it, that I have given you the command. Only those generals, who gain success, can set up dictators. What I now ask of you is military success, and I will risk the dictatorship. The government will support you to the utmost of its ability, which is neither more nor less than it has done and will do for all commanders. I much fear that the spirit which

ROTARY CLUB HEARS ADDRESS ABOUT RUBBER

A report of the work accomplished and now being done by the rubber industry in the United States was given in an address by P. W. Barnard, manager of the truck and bus tire department of the B. F. Goodrich company, Philadelphia, before members of the Rotary club at their regular weekly meeting Monday evening at the YWCA building.

Mr. Barnard divided his address into three main divisions, the manufacture, general use and rationing of rubber.

He revealed that in 1941 about 97 per cent of the United States' crude rubber was imported. Just prior to the attack on Pearl Harbor the United States had 500,000 tons in storage and 300,000 tons on order, enough for one year of normal demand.

Thunders Of
Silence Too
Much; Little
Okie Is Buck

By HAL BOYLE

With American Troops in Germany, Nov. 4 (Delayed) (AP) — Rank and its special privilege are the cause of perennial bitterness in the American civilian Army, but men without stripes or bars have a way of dealing with non-coms and officers who let promotion go to their heads.

Witness the sergeant who was broken by silence.

Call him Okie—which is close enough to the name the men knew him by. He was a courier, a jeep driver for a service outfit which made several trips daily to the front lines. Okie would drive anywhere in the rear areas, but he was distinctly allergic to gunfire.

Whenever a jeep had to be sent toward the front Okie wasn't around—or if he was around he became suddenly too ill to drive, or complained so strongly that some other driver would shrug and say, "Oh, hell, I'll go for him."

NIGHT COURIER

Okie volunteered for a job as a night courier driver which nobody else wanted because of the hours. Okie was glad to get it—the trips were dark and lonely, but they were far beyond the range of enemy artillery.

He did his job well and wasn't disliked. He could strum a guitar and sing hillbilly songs and other soldiers found him amusing. Some officers couldn't stand him, but others thought he was a model little soldier. Okie always "yes sirred" them at every opportunity and never forgot to throw them a salute.

So when the table of organization permitted, one officer angling a sergeantcy for little Okie, the boy who wouldn't go near the front.

"OUT OF UNIFORM"

He found himself a snazzy pair of leather puttees and an old pair of French riding breeches, grew a little black mustache and began giving orders. He was "out of uniform," but the officers who liked him overlooked this because he was Okie and never forgot that "yes sir" and that salute.

But the men under him stopped dropping by to listen to his guitar. They had halfway liked Okie as a private—but they didn't like the idea of taking orders from such a half-pint.

No one ever came up to speak to him voluntarily. If he gave an order it was taken in complete silence. Okie had no friends left in his unit.

TOO MUCH SILENCE

Then most of the old men in his unit were moved several hundred miles away. Okie missed them, felt the need of justifying himself in their eyes. He obtained a week's pass in order to visit them.

The ridiculous little figure in his leather puttees and French riding pants was met at the new camp by stony silence. The men he spoke to would nod curtly and turn away. Groups melted apart as he came up.

Okie stood it for three days. Then he left one morning. No one bade him goodbye.

He didn't show up at once at his old camp. He went AWOL—and was four days late returning from his leave. He had plainly been on a barge—little Okie, who always before had one toe carefully on the line.

They busted Okie, took away his stripes and his extra pay, made him take off his puttees and riding breeches. Okie is a private again now. He sometimes forgets to salute when an officer goes by. He plays his guitar—but only when the new men in his outfit gather to listen. They kid him and call him "The man who was."

MRS. STANTON QUITTS AS ART SUPERVISOR

Lieut. Barton
Weds Officer
In New Guinea

Mrs. Eleanor E. Stanton, Harrisburg, serving her second year as supervisor of art in the Gettysburg public schools, submitted her resignation to the Gettysburg board of school directors Monday evening to take effect January 1. The resignation was accepted.

Mrs. Stanton, who formerly taught art in a number of high school and rural districts in the county, has been commuting from Harrisburg this year. The board directed Superintendent L. C. Keefauver to attempt to locate a successor.

The resignation was received at one of the briefest directors' meetings held here in several years. Business was completed and the meeting adjourned in 45 minutes. President Ralph Z. Oyler presided with all members of the board present.

ELECT DELEGATE

Two leaves of absence were granted local teachers for the purpose of restoration of health. Miss Ruth McIlhenny, of the high school faculty, and Mrs. Margaret Gibson, fourth grade teacher at High Street school, were granted sabbatical leaves to the end of the first semester, January 31.

Mrs. Sarah Black Gideon and Mrs. Earl J. Bowman, who have been serving as substitutes, were formally named as substitutes for the two teachers on leave—Mrs. Gideon in the high school and Mrs. Bowman at High Street.

Mahlon P. Hartzell was elected as the board's delegate to the state school directors' convention at Harrisburg February 8 and 9.

FINANCIAL REPORTS

In response to a request from the local camp of the Sons of Veterans that the high school students march in the Memorial Day parade, the board suggested that some means be sought to encourage students to march with their teachers and other public school pupils on May 30.

The monthly report of the school district treasurer showed a balance of $62,080 in the general fund after a month's expenses of $9,768 were paid. Chief receipt item last month was $5,519 received in tuition for non-resident pupils. More than $600 also was received in taxes. The sinking fund balance was given as $480.

December 4 was set as the time for the next board meeting.

WHEREABOUTS OF HITLER IS NAZI THRILLER

By DEWITT MACKENZIE
Associated Press War Analyst

The mystery of Hitler's whereabouts is rapidly assuming the proportions of one of history's prime thrillers, and it's likely to have a profound influence on the German people and consequently on the trend of the war if it develops that the Führer of the super-race is incapacitated.

Propaganda Minister Goebbels has set all the wheels of his great machine turning to convince the Reich and the world at large that the dictator isn't ill mad or dead but is an "excellent vigorous health." Still the fact remains that the Nazi chief's people haven't heard from him directly in about four months.

The bomb attempt on his life was July 20. The next day somebody representing himself as Hitler went on the air to say that the plot had failed. Since then there's been a great silence on the part of the Führer, and it seems significant that his captains have been working overtime to provide excuses (and very lame ones) why the master hasn't appeared personally. Why should they be so anxious to make a secret of an affair that would be treated openly in any normal country?

Had Full Control

I think the answer is clear enough. Hitler has been absolute in his dictatorship for more than a decade. His control has been so complete that all Germany has come to think of government in terms of this one man. His personality has dominated the whole country, and has had a particularly powerful hold on the young generation which has been reared to fanaticism on the pap which he provided.

True, within recent months it has been reported that the blood-minded Himmler, chief of the Gestapo and the home troops, had got Hitler under his power and was the real ruler of Germany. Well, that could be true. However, if it is true I don't believe the German public knows it.

The people have stuck with the man who tore up the treaty of Versailles and all but conquered Europe—but my observations in Germany lead me to believe they wouldn't long follow anyone else while their world is crashing about their ears. Without Hitler the government would be close to helpless in the present crisis.

Fanatic Loyalty

It's difficult for anyone who hasn't actually seen it to realize how completely the evil but in many ways hypnotic Hitlerian personality has dominated the Reich. I've reported in previous columns that Hitler's hold on his people has been more than political. Many of them have regarded him as a Messiah—and an air-tight politico-religious leadership is hard to beat.

Thus it isn't strange that Hitler's aides should try to conceal the undoubtedly fact that, for some reason or other, he has been incapacitated. He may have been merely ill, and will reappear. But so delicate is the situation that the Nazi leaders would be afraid of a collapse of morale, both civilian and military, if it became known that the Führer wasn't on the job.

Morale May Slip

Hitler's leadership is doubly essential now because the armies which have been fighting so fanatically believe they are supporting him personally. Don't forget that the attempt on his life in July marked the defection of a large section of the Prussian war-lords who recognized that Germany was bound to lose the war. So personal loyalty has much to do with keeping the troops in line for him, though fear of Hitler's reprisals has played its part.

For these reasons I believe that if Hitler is permanently out of the picture for any reason, we shall see a stamp in German morale which will hasten the end of the war. Hitler personally might hold Germany loyal for a considerable time. Hitler dead, ill or mad would be a blow the country could scarcely endure.

WHEREABOUTS OF HITLER IS NAZI THRILLER

By DEWITT MACKENZIE
Associated Press War Analyst

The mystery of Hitler's whereabouts is rapidly assuming the proportions of one of history's prime thrillers, and it's likely to have a profound influence on the German people and consequently on the trend of the war if it develops that the Fuehrer of the super-race is incapacitated.

Propaganda Minister Goebbels has set all the wheels of his great machine turning to convince the Reich and the world at large that the dictator isn't ill, mad or dead but is an "excellent, vigorous health." Still the fact remains that the Nazi chief's people haven't heard from him directly in about four months.

The bomb attempt on his life was July 20. The next day somebody representing himself as Hitler went on the air to say that the plot had failed. Since then there's been a great silence on the part of the Fuehrer, and it seems significant that his captains have been working overtime to provide excuses (and very lame ones) why the master hasn't appeared personally. Why should they be so anxious to make a secret of an affair that would be treated openly in any normal country?

Had Full Control

I think the answer is clear enough. Hitler has been absolute in his dictatorship for more than a decade. His control has been so complete that all Germany has come to think of government in terms of this one man. His personality has dominated the whole country, and has had a particularly powerful hold on the young generation which has been reared to fanaticism on the pap which he provided.

True, within recent months it has been reported that the bloody-minded Himmler, chief of the Gestapo and the home troops, had got Hitler under his power and was the real ruler of Germany. Well, that could be true. However, if it is true I don't believe the German public knows it.

The people have stuck with the man who tore up the treaty of Versailles and all but conquered Europe—but my observations in Germany lead me to believe they wouldn't long follow anyone else while their world is crashing about their ears. Without Hitler the government would be close to helpless in the present crisis.

Fanatic Loyalty

It's difficult for anyone who hasn't actually seen it to realize how completely the evil but in many ways hypnotic Hitlerian personality has dominated the Reich. I've reported in previous columns that Hitler's hold on his people has been more than political. Many of them have regarded him as a Messiah—and an air-tight politico-religious leadership is hard to beat.

Thus it isn't strange that Hitler's aides should try to conceal the undoubted fact that, for some reason or other, he has been incapacitated. He may have been merely ill, and will reappear. But so delicate is the situation that the Nazi leaders would be afraid of a collapse of morale, both civilian and military, if it became known that the Fuehrer wasn't on the job.

Morale May Slip

Hitler's leadership is doubly essential now because the armies which have been fighting so fanatically believe they are supporting him personally. Don't forget that the attempt on his life in July marked the defection of a large section of the Prussian war-lords who recognized that Germany was bound to lose the war. So personal loyalty has much to do with keeping the troops in line for him, though fear of Hitler's reprisals has played its part.

For these reasons I believe that if Hitler is permanently out of the picture for any reason, we shall see a slump in German morale which will hasten the end of the war. Hitler personally might hold Germany loyal for a considerable time. Hitler dead, ill or mad would be a blow the country could scarcely endure.

SOLDIER LONGING

When he comes home, and soon I pray

Will come to all that happy day, I'm very sure he'll want to see The old home as it used to be.

His room, his pictures on the wall,

And Ma and me not changed at all.

When all the battle flags are furled He'll want the same old little world That once he knew. He'll look to find

The things he long has kept in mind:

The shops, the church, the people good

That long made up his neighbor-hood.

Then all the battle flags are furled He'll want the same old little world That once he knew. He'll look to find

The things he long has kept in mind:

The shops, the church, the people good

That long made up his neighbor-hood.

Today's Talk

EMPTINESS

Quite common is this mental and spiritual emptiness that so many of us experience at times. We actually know so little, and the little that we do know, we often put to a lazy use. And so we keep searching for the man, the book, or the fact that will help to remove the emptiness that we feel.

These are not good times through which we are passing today—but serious, confusing and tragic times. Many are sincerely trying to do something about it all. Great armadas are trying to do something about it—without knowing exactly why, or the purpose. Mere catch words neither feed the soul nor give it hope.

All we have to do to convince us is how utterly mankind has failed in its efforts to give us a "brave new World," is to read our daily newspaper. It tells us of defeats and victories among great armies, of this class hatred against another class, of statement after statement of ill will against another fellowman, and so on. Religion—the hope of the world—is challenged, and has been challenged, generation after generation, and without an answer. The "money changers" keep returning to their lairs.

And so it is that the human heart craves for nourishment and refreshment. Even with the poorest and humblest this emptiness is felt. There is the hope and dream for something more than mere sustenance and life. Never can this emptiness be filled with anything that satisfies so long as there are the ideal of hate and the desire for destruction afame in the world.

Effort alone is not enough to overcome this emptiness. We must search for those things which do satisfy, but we can make no moves nor can we get anywhere unless we know in our own minds what we want. It may not be what the cry of the day may be, but that won't matter to anyone who sincerely thinks, and has the courage to contrive methods to attain the ideal or the objective. To take a stand heroically is no small task but it is certain to send a flood of clean, healthy blood to the tips of one's fingers. It will help to fill the emptiness.

Tomorrow Mr. Adams will talk on the subject: "Two Great Institutions."

Southeast Asia Command Headquarters, Kandy, Ceylon, Nov. 14 (AP)—British imperialists converged on two sides of Kalemyo, 55 miles inside the Burma border, Monday and brought the key Japanese supply center under shell fire.

Rome, Nov. 14 (AP)—Gen. Sir Harold Alexander, pointing out that winter has brought an inevitable slowing down of the Italian campaign, ordered Italian patriots north of the battle line Monday to "lie low" and cease large-scale organized activity.

Neither you, nor Napoleon, if he were alive again, could get any good out of an army, while such a spirit prevails in it.

To the Father and Mother of Col. Elmer E. Ellsworth:
"My dear Sir and Madam—

"In the untimely loss of your noble son, our affliction here, is scarcely less than your own. So much of promised usefulness to one's country, and of bright hopes for one's self and friends, have rarely been so suddenly dashed, as in his fall. In size, in years, and in youthful appearance, a boy only, his power to command men, was surprisingly great. This power, combined with a fine intellect, an indomitable energy, and a taste altogether military, constituted him, as seemed to me, the best natural talent, in that department, I ever knew. And yet he was singularly modest and deferential in social intercourse. My acquaintance with him began less than two years ago; yet through the latter half of the intervening period, it was as intimate as the disparity of our ages, and my engrossing engagements, would permit. To me, he appeared to have no indulgences or pastimes; and I never heard him utter a profane, or an intemperate word. What was conclusive of his good heart, he never forgot his parents. The honors he labored for so laudably, and, in the sad end, so gallantly gave his life, he meant for them, no less than for himself.

"In the hope that it may be no intrusion upon your sorrow, I have ventured to address you this tribute to the memory of my young friend, and your brave and early fallen child.

"May God give you that consolation which is beyond all earthly power.

"Sincerely your friend in a common affliction—

Air Agreement May Be Reached

Chicago, Nov. 14 (AP)—The International Civil Aviation conference probably will produce this week an interim plan for world air transport operation in the form of an executive agreement which could readily be put into effect, informed officials said today.

The interim period is described as the time from the end of this 54-nation conference to the effectiveness of some permanent convention, an outline of which also is being drawn.

There is little likelihood of an attempt to use anything stronger than an executive agreement, it was explained, because of the time which would be lost in obtaining ratification. The agreement must lie within the scope of American law, specifically the 1938 Civil Aeronautics act, since the executive branch cannot go beyond that without referral to Congress.

PHILIPPINE HOLIDAY
San Francisco, Nov. 14 (AP)—President Sergio Osmeña of the Philippines Commonwealth has set Nov. 15 as a legal holiday, marking the commonwealth's ninth anniversary, the Voice of Freedom radio in the Philippines, announced Monday.
